Qty.: 5.4 c.f. (5 cartons and 1 document box)

ABSTRACT

The School's antecedents date to the beginning of Purdue University-Indianapolis Extension classes in 1940 and defense training courses offered during World War Two. Diplomas were first offered shortly after the war, and in 1962 the Division of Applied Technology began to offer classes on the new 38th Street Campus. A bachelor's degree in engineering was first offered in 1969. The School of Engineering and Technology was created in 1972 following the merger of Indiana University and Purdue University. Programs migrated to new buildings on the IUPUI main campus.

Records include correspondence, minutes, reports, and publications.

ACCESS

Personnel and student records and other personal information in these records are restricted. All other material is open to the public without restriction.
